FALSE CRY IS BASED BY TROSTS

By WILLIAM HOSTER

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—It is the hour for writing the last desperate plea in this fight to defeat reciprocity, and the lumber trust, the paper trust and the thirty odd trust combinations of the states which have been organized to meet commercial Canada to the point of view have sprung the expected Dominion-wide scare that the political situation of Canada will follow reciprocity with the United States. It was foreseen and expected. A series of talks was deliberately permitted to intervene, during which time amusements were allowed temporarily to subside and the crowd of hard times, closed shops and widespread panic was directed to the focus of the working people as an argument against the pact.

Franklin, the Montreal Star—M. G. G. having made a flying trip to Canada was preparing the broadside, which was offered for sale to the Canadian newspapers, free of charge—four pages of it, including one setting forth the full picture of American statistics, to make Canada a part of the American union, of which reciprocity was the first step.

Monday the matter was sprung. The Star felt the Montreal Gazette, the Ottawa and Toronto Conservative newspapers, everywhere in the Dominion papers, ought to be induced to the purchase price to lose their readers to the effect, but those attacking, however. From now until the polls close on Thursday evening this senseless business will be done in the eyes of the Canadian electorate.

Attempts to Delude Voters.

With editorial privilege at bay, every effort will be made to influence, try and delude the voter into a belief that he is entitled to a better life for a single economic measure intended to reduce the cost of living and promote the welfare of his country. He will be told his birthright, handing over his nationality to the government to the world.

No effort will be spared. The national friendship of a generation will be destroyed, economic relations will be disturbed, all the mass appeals to passion and prejudice will be taken advantage of that the commercial control of a continent may be turned to the great industrial exploitation of the future.

Canada's commercial future will be balanced against the lumber trust's right to sell on timber, the paper trust's monopoly of the pulp and paper industry of North America and the trust trust's control of the necessities of life.

The AMERICAN'S circulation from Ottawa, Washington and Montreal have been sent this last effort of the trusts. Canada who will have the facts a momentary thought.

The lumber trust, the paper trust, the beef trust and the rest of the combine trusts stand in an unbroken line against reciprocity in the American Congress. They will not allow a single word to be said in favor of reciprocity, only by the combined strength of the Democratic party can they be defeated.

FRED SNODGRASS, THE GIANTS' STAR UTILITY PLAYER

SNODGRASS IS GIANTS' HANDY MAN

By R. W. LARDNER

It's a nice thing for a manager to have a handy man on his club, a man who can play a couple of positions well and refuse to be put in any matter where he is not wanted. Such a handy man is Fred Snodgrass, now serving as centre fielder for the New York Giants.

If the Giants win the pennant in the National League, Fred will be well served as an outfielder, unless something happens to Merkle or Wilson and Myers. But his real chance is in the centre, mostly because he can hit so hard.

Snodgrass is a fair catcher and an acceptable first baseman. He was tried in the outfield because of his ability to hit. He has yet to get the best outside in the league by any means, but he can show pretty good and has no particular weakness. Snodgrass has third place in New York's batting race, and that means he can eat some. He follows Lawrence and Doyle and precedes Murray and Merkle, and the pitcher is strong enough with the bat as every fan of pitchers.

The Giant centre fielder is only twenty-four years old. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs in the neighborhood of 170 pounds. He was catching for the St. Vincent College team in Los Angeles in 1907 when McGraw spotted him. His college name was Walter, a nickname.

Paul Thomas right-handed bat bats the same way. He is fast on his feet and a good base runner. The centre ground in the outfield, but hasn't been there long enough to play the battery as intelligently as he might.

Fred led the National League in hitting for a long time last year. He batted as if he would surely be the champion batsman, but he slumped in the closing days and was hit with a .280 clip and in losing the batting race, with a total of forty-one thefts.

He is now hitting at a .280 clip and is losing the batting race, with a total of forty-one thefts.

Archbishop Gives Blessing at Mass

For the first time in more than forty months, Archbishop William B. O'Connell presided at a solemn high mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday morning. At the conclusion of the service the archbishop gave his blessing to the congregation, which was the first of the season. During the mass Archbishop O'Connell was attended by the Rev. M. J. Sullivan, Rev. M. J. Spillane, and the Rev. Charles J. Sullivan, who presided at the altar.

MAYORS AWAIT FITZGERALD

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston is to be among the speakers at the "Mayors' Day" observance in connection with the opening of the international Municipal Congress and Exposition today. It is planned to tender a high reception to the Mayor of Boston, and there will be very little doing before his arrival, at 3 o'clock. Chief executives from cities in all parts of the United States and abroad will take part in the program.

Charles Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, will welcome the visiting officials, and responses will be made by Sir T. Vaerstrong, Lord Mayor of London; William J. Wagner, Mayor of New York; Dennis A. Sullivan, Mayor of Kansas; and the Mayor of the League of American Municipalities, and John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston.

RODGERS INJURED BY FALL

MIDDLETON, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Rodgers started early today to resume his cross-country flight, but an accident to his plane was thrown to the ground and his journey seriously is not known. The proprietor of his airplane was broken.

GALBRAITH P. RODGERS—Plans to start this morning from Middletown, N. Y., and make Chicago his next stop.

JAMES J. WARD—Held at Oswego by delay in delivery of new motor make flight at daybreak. Hopes to land near Buffalo tonight.

ROBERT G. POWELL—Marine pilot repaired except today. Reports to resume flight tomorrow morning and about the Sierra peaks.

By GALBRAITH P. RODGERS.

MIDDLETON, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The only report I have is that I did not start at 5 o'clock yesterday. That would have meant an hour and a half more flying, and I think I would have doubted the distance I did go. The severe out around Newburg cut me short of my intended flight, but that was due to the approach of dark.

No man over had a trust machine yet a more perfect machine than I did. This was not a case of cylinders and not a source of the machine. The delay was due to the failure of my mechanics to leave the machine last night, which necessitated my going after it at 3 o'clock. It was 7 o'clock when I got to Newburg, and when I got back to Middletown I was tired. I took a nap and they forgot to call me till 2 o'clock. My trip to Newburg at 3 p.m. was interesting. I was up about 1,000 feet, almost entirely beyond the influence of the air eddies and cross currents. I would have gone further up if there had been more time. It was interesting to see the anti-aircraft machine about in the air.

The wind was quivering just as I turned over into New Jersey, and caught the big Erie Bridge over the Passaic River was about of me. That made the trip for me and therefore I directed by the white canvas strips along the tracks and the crowd.

Vaughan Easy Landing.

I could see the tops of clouds from the window, but, of course, there was no wind but that of the engine.

I made my greatest speed after I turned down from Newburg. The wind was from the east, and I knew it was there. The only difficulty in landing was to avoid hitting something. I had to hold them in before they would clear a tree, but I came down as easily as I didn't knock the sides off my rig.

Where I will land today I can't say. I will keep going until I have a stop. I am a flying veteran to Jimmy Ward last night that I will get to him by Tuesday. I was only in five, but I mean it.

ROYAL HOSTS TO ENTER PORTUGAL

LISBON, Sept. 18.—The recent monarchist conspiracy unearthed at Vienna da Castelo, appears to have been more serious than at first thought. A great part of the troops and many civilians were implicated. The conspiracy resulted in plans to start a rising of the people of Vienna da Castelo, Braga and Oporto and massacre the civilians in those cities the moment the royalists crossed the frontier.

The leaders of the movement were confident that such action within the country would demolish the Republican troops on the frontier and drive them back over the coast of the North by the Royalists.

The government was advised of the plot and the monarchists were arrested all those implicated in the plot.

In view of the instructions issued by the Spanish government, the monarchists have abandoned their plan and are preparing to enter Portugal. They will proceed across the border without arms and leave armed with bands of monarchists to bring them back to their arms and supplies and store them in caves in the mountains.

PEASANTS PRAY AT MOUNT ETNA

CATANIA, Sept. 18.—The immense flood of lava which has spread down the Mount Etna continues its work of destruction. There are now five miles streams, stretching out miles over the country. Professor Rizzo, the director of the observatory, said that the initial speed of the lava at the mouth of the crater has slightly diminished, but that instantaneous material is still being poured out, and perhaps at great a quantity as on the first few days.

Several camps have been burned near the new crater, and the lava has been able to obtain any protection from lava.

A lava flow, which is falling over the coast and children. Monks of the Abbey of Antipa, continues his work of comforting and assisting the peasants.

A great procession, bearing a statue of Christ, marched in front of the lava, and the lava was stopped for a moment.

Nearly everybody in Catania reads the American.

HOLD INJURED BOY AS BURGLAR

A policeman stands guard in the Hotel Hospital at the bedside of Joseph Valiano, who after falling sixty feet down an elevator shaft, while breaking into the wholesale grocery store of M. O'Keefe & Co., lay four hours at the bottom of the shaft with a broken hip before his prostrated was discovered. Valiano's condition is serious. He was badly shaken up by the fall and he is feared he may be seriously injured. He has been unconscious ever since his arrival at the hospital, and the physicians say the police have been able to obtain any statement from him.

Valiano, who lives at No. 101 Salem street, North End, was formerly employed in the O'Keefe store as a helper. The police say he was taken on a public place when he fell.

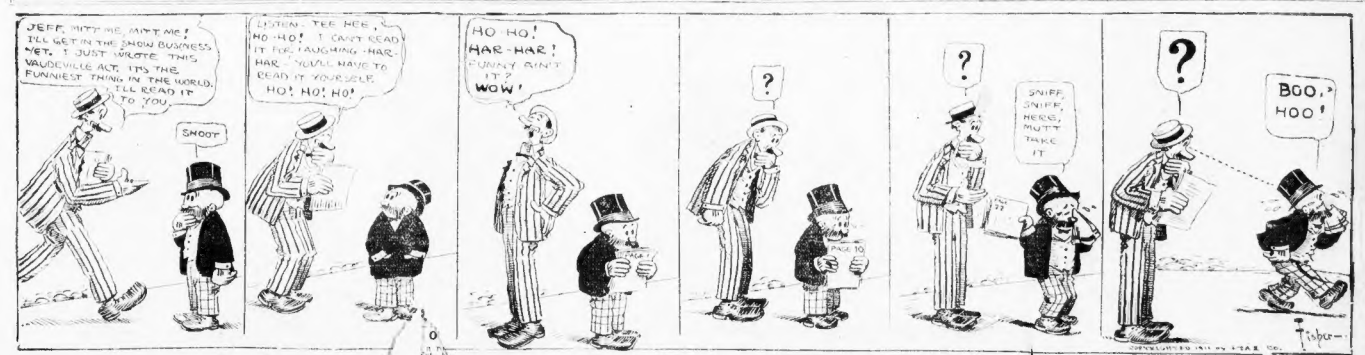

At the time of the accident, Valiano was at the elevator, but he fell down the shaft.

ATTEMPT TO DELUDE CANADIAN VOTERS BY FALSE ISSUES IN CLOSING DAYS.

To the trusts; opposed also, by the way, to the further acquisition of territory by the United States, which is a fact to be considered by the Canadian voter who contemplates annexation.

Moving forward a step, let the Canadian voter consider how the newspapers of his nation at first hailed the reciprocity agreement with satisfaction and how the Conservative party in Parliament welcomed it, and how, when the Liberal Government was controlled by one man, Conservative leaders and papers almost over night set their faces most violently against the agreement. To do so they were forced to repudiate the political campaigns of a generation and give the lie to their own

Making Final Essay

What the Canadian voters may regard as significant is the fact that the switch of the Conservative party came about almost simultaneously with the report first circulated in Washington and later in Ottawa, that the great industrial corporations of the United States, failing to defeat reciprocity at Washington, were prepared to spend any amount of money that was necessary to beat the pact in Canada.

And now comes the final assault to save the sacred tariff and perpetual trust control of the continent. And what is the nature of the proof that reciprocity means annexation? Even the Canadians, scrupulously appreciating the discharge of their duty, must smile at the transparent nature of the fraud. They are asked across three columns of the conservative newspapers to believe reciprocity means annexation, because the Southern Lumbermen of the United States says so.

Simply that reciprocity takes the tariff tax of $1.25 off lumber, admits Canadian lumber to the United States, and breaks the grip of the Lumber Trust on the lumber industry. Annexation? Certainly. And anything else in the view of the Lumber Trust. The very worst can happen when the grip of the Lumber Trust on the timber supplies of the continent

Why, when the Southern Lumber Journal says reciprocity means annexation, the statement is as true as though M. Whidden Graham, Ed Hines or Senator Lorimer himself had made the statement. This much of the Southern Lumber Journal's statement will show its drift.

Of course it is necessary to our well-being and that of other countries that the United States maintain the most friendly relation with Great Britain, and while it is safe to say that the mother country would reluctantly part with her fair daughter, the Canadian provinces, yet with the United States backing Canada and Canada working in harmony with the United States for annexation, Great Britain would be powerless to help herself, and could therefore only sit on the fence and watch the procession go by. Let annexation of Canada, therefore, be the watchword now and hereafter until the United States becomes the master of the land as well as the high seas; for such is bound to come about.

Proof of Trust Activi

What more proof does the Canadian distrust want of the participation of the trusts in this campaign? He has been warned by the big combinations of Canada not to vote for reciprocity, and now, as a final blast, comes the annexation story once more in the shape of a Lumber Trust editorial, which bears on its face the stamp of having been prepared solely for use in the Canadian campaign.

The Lumber Trust is fighting to save the 25% tax, which is charged against the Canadian lumber man. Is it likely to favor reciprocity, which will remove that tax? How much would it be willing to spend to save that tax? Would a million dollars be too much?

And the Lumber Trust is only one of many. There is the Beef Trust to be considered. How much will it spend to save the tax on cattle? And the Food Trust—how much will it spend to defeat the removal of the tariff on foodstuffs?

that enter Canada from the United States or the United States from Canada.
Canada's gravest danger lies in the defeat of reciprocity—a danger that is economic, commercial, industrial and political.

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—Sir Wilfred Laurler is making a whitewash close of his campaign for reciprocity, and is greatly pleased by the growing evidences that his cause will triumph in the election on Thursday. To political friends here he expressed himself as increasingly assured of the continuance of his regime and the

"We believe—rightly, that upon native products we could compete, with advantage to us, if we could have the American markets. When I came here this evening I was asked to explain how reciprocity would effect the leather and shoe business in Quebec. I would say that it would not affect it in any way. If You Won't Let Them Steal from Your Government--They'll Steal From You

That's the Simple Explanation of the Rise in the Price of Sugar.
(Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner)

You know that about the lowest, most dishonorable and persistently thievish—even among the big American monopolies—is the Sugar Trust.

You read the revelations in the Sugar Trust trials, the proof that the "distinguished, high-minded, financial capitalist" in charge of the trust had been stealing systematically from the government that gave them protection.

With false weights, with bribery of government officials, with tricky springs and levers to cheat the scales, the eminently "respectable gentlemen" in charge of the Sugar Trust stole from the government year after year.

These statements are part of the public record. The fact that the "eminently respectable gentlemen" who did the stealing and put the proceeds in their pockets did not go to jail is due to the other fact that in America, when you are rich enough, and when you steal enough, YOU DON'T GO TO JAIL.

While the Sugar Trust was stealing millions a year from the government, sugar was comparatively low in price.

A good price was charged—a good, profitable price. And the profit on that price, plus the amount that the "respectable gentlemen" were stealing systematically from the government, was sufficient temporarily to satisfy the trust management.

Now, however, the stealing from the government has stopped and the Sugar Trust puts up the price of sugar to the highest point on record—to take out of the pockets of you consumers the money that can no longer safely be stolen from the government.

While stealing from the government as well as the people was part of the Sugar Trust program, sugar sold as low as $46.00 a hundred, a little less than five cents a pound.

Now sugar is selling for six and three-quarters and seven cents a pound.

This price is the highest on record, and it surprises some good souls. But it need not surprise them.

The Sugar Trust feels that it is entitled to steal a certain amount from the American people in some way. All of the trusts feel that way. Therefore, when stealing directly from the government is interfered with, the trust raises the price of sugar and steals directly from the consumer.

It would seem that sooner or later some of these "respectable gentlemen" will have to be put in jail. That is to say, if the public has any real objection to being robbed.

"Should I Save My Mother or My Wife First?" Asks a Reader

If You Didn't Save Your Mother First, Your Wife Ought to Leave You as Soon as She Got on Shore
(Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner)

Here's an interesting letter from Arthur Tarshis:

EDITOR AMERICAN: Will you kindly answer the following question in your editorial column?

I am sure that while this query is one of a very deep character, still I feel that your decision in the matter will suffice. If a man is travelling at sea with his wife and his mother, and the boat should capsize, he being able to swim, who should he attempt to save first, the wife or the mother?

Thanking you in advance for your kindness, I am, very truly yours, ARTHUR TARSHIS.

P. S.—Please do not answer from a religious standpoint, but from a duty-bound view.

The answer to this is very simple, very plain, from every point of view, religious or other.

A man owes a great deal to his wife, but he owes infinitely more to his mother, and it is a poor man who doesn't realize this.

To the credit of women it can be said that they are very rarely lacking in a sense of duty to their mothers. There is very little doubt at all as to what a woman would do if her husband and her mother fell into the water at the same time, if she could swim and they could not.

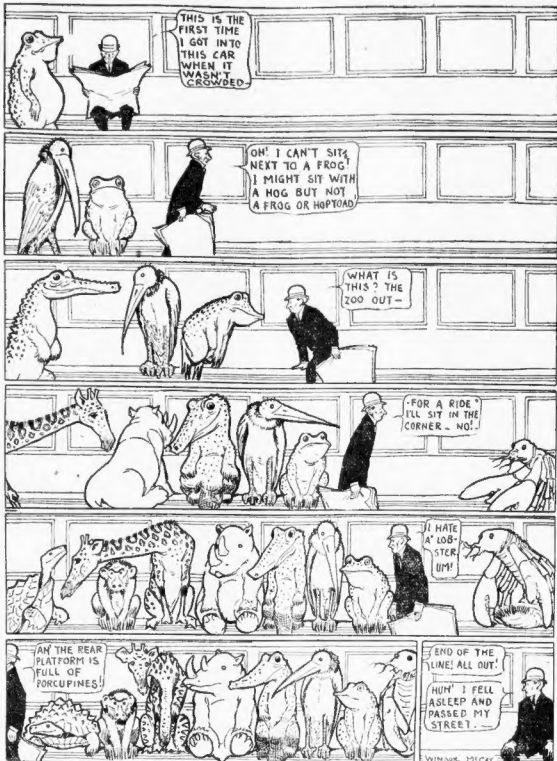

The husband would flounder as best he might until the mother was saved—that would be exactly right.

Many men would try to save their wives first in such a case—unless they happened to want a good excuse to get rid of her.

And there are not a few that would save their pocketbooks before they saved either wife or mother—civilization!

A real man, however, who saw his mother in danger would think of nothing else, not of himself, his wife, or his children, until he had saved his mother.

If a man were so lacking in decency and duty as to put anything before his mother's safety, if he did save the wife and allowed the mother to perish, the best thing for the wife to do would be to leave him as soon as she reached dry land, for he would not be a man worth keeping.
